HONGHONG, DECEMBER 24TH, 1875.

THE native passenger traffic to and from Amoy is, as is well known, very large. Mr. GEORGE HUGHES, the Commissioner of Customs at that port, in his Report on the trade of last year, says that 498 Europeaus and 16,461 Chinese arrived at, and 251 Europeaus and 19,602 Chinese departed from Amoy during 1874. These figures do not attain to those of 1873, but, considering the number of passengers, there should be proper provision made for their health and comfort during the voyage. The Governments of Quick March ... "Distant Greeting" ........ Doring. Great Britain, the United States, and Germany have made regulations regarding the number of passengers, necessaries, &c., to be taken by ships under their flags, which are stringently carried out by their Consule, much to the benefit of the emigrant native. But other nations have not, Mr. HUGHES tells us, been equally solicitous to prevent overcrowding, and while the Ordinance passed in October last year by the Government of coroner, and a jury. Dr. Ayres said he made a passenger ships has done much to obviste this great evil in vessels bound to those ports, ships still leave Amoy, bound for Siam, Renon, and other places, with an excessive number of passengers on board. Some of these ships, Mr. Hueres says, "loave Amoy for ports other than the Straits Settlements so crowded clustered together like bees swarming; they their living freight, and I have no besitation in asserting that, if an accident occurred half a dozen miles out of port, the loss of life would be appalling." Mr. HUGHES adds his conviction that there will, sooner or later, be some terrible disaster, the fruit of this practice, and records an emphatic protest against it. In this he will be joined by all rightthinking people. The Governments mentioned and that of this Colony have done their part towards putting a stop to the evils arising from overcrowding, and it is much to be deplored that any civilised and Christian Governmentshould neglect to follow their example. The Chinese passengers themselves are ignorant of the risks they encounter by crowding, and at starting see no great inconvenience in being packed like herrings in a barrel, as they are accustomed to economise apace. The shipowners are, of course, well aware of the danger incurred, though perhaps immunity from serious accident for some time has inspired them with recklessness But upon the consuls of those nations under whose flag the abuse is permitted rests the chief responsibility. They will do well to see to the matter, and take measures to check a practice almost certain, if persevered in, to result in some shocking calamity, which will bring down upon them the indignant reprobation of all humane and enlightened WHETHER the tone adopted by the Japan

Muil in reference to the Corean difficulty may be taken as an indication of the policy of the Japanese Government or not, it is cortain that the Mail seems to have changed regulia: its language in some measure on the above subject. From deprecating hosfilities with Corea, it now simply deplores the necessity for the expedition which the MIRADO'S Government has decided to send to that country to demand satisfaction for the recent affront offered to Japan, and to propose a new commercial treaty. It evidently and refusal of duty. thinks that unless the Coreans make some reparation for the insult there will be war. It is very improbable that any Western Power will lend Japan any active support in such a struggle, though they would be certain to give her their cordial sympathy. It is even doubtful whether they could induce China to maintain a neutral position. Unless this can be done, the area of bastilities may be widened and a long and disastrons conflict anana. LOST HOUR. · A golden hour on a summer morn, When half the world was still. The daw was fresh on the new-mown bay. And the bridge veil of the fair young day Hung o'er the purple hill. The sheep bells tinkled across the slopes,

Sweet as an ciffh chinge Butterdies fitted athwart the down Bece went marmaring, busy and brown. Over the fregrant thyme.

A languid calm and a dull content. Silenco instead of speech ; The wind sighed low, and the lark sang high. But the golden hours of our lives went by And drifted out of reach.

We both wont back to an eager life: But in its pause to-day The gleam of that golden hour returns, And my jaded spirit frets and yearns; For one chance swept away.

The years creep on, and the heart grows tired Even of hopes fulfilled? And turns away from the world's strong wine With fevered lips that must ever pine For that pire draught we spilled,

And yet perchance when our long day wance. (Age math its joys late born;) We shall meet again on the green bill-side. And find, in the solemn eventide, The hour we lost at morn. -Good Words.
